Games Tuesday

Eagles vs American Legion; Cougars vs Forest Service; Mosquito vs Mac's Jumbos; Snowline, bye.

The fifth round of the county basketball league schedule, played Tuesday night at the high school gymnasium, saw Mac's Jumbos turned back by a narrow margin in their attempt to do what other teams have thus far been unable to do, i. e., "Stop the Eagles."

Although the league leaders retained an undefeated record by the score of 15 to 12, the bare chance that the Jumbo free throws were unable to find the basket seems to account for the Jumbo defeat.

The second battle of the night sent the Cougars against Snow-line and gave the fans plenty of thrills before the Cougars won, 28 to 27.

The third contest was hard-fought and saw the Legion defeat Mosquito, 26 to 19.

In the opening battle, the Eagles were out in front 7 to 1 at the quarter and at half time it was 8 to 5, the Eagles leading. The Jumbos ad-

DeMolays Plan Division Meet

Quarterly Gathering In Placerville Mar. 2 & 3
To Have Variety Show

Members of El Dorado Chapter, Order of De Molay, are making plans to entertain the regular quarterly meeting of the Sacramento Valley division of the order in Pla-cerville on Saturday and Sunday, March 2 and 3.

It is expected the meeting will draw approximately one hundred delegates from the Sacramento Valley as far north as Redding.

One of the features of the meeting, in which the public may be interested will be a band concert and variety hour, presented by the fifty piece band of Sacramento chapter of the order, which will be given on Saturday evening, March 2nd.

El Dorado Chapter is making plans for a Valentine's party to be held on Friday evening, February 16th. The evening will be devoted chiefly to dancing and invitations will be out this week. Robert Woodward, social chairman for the chapter, is in charge of arrangements.

World Day Of Prayer Service Friday

The two missionary societies of the Federated Church will sponsor a service at the church at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon in co-operation with the observance of the annual "World Day of Prayer."

All church members and other friends in the community are welcome to attend the service and join in the local observance of a world-wide activity.

Clarence Wilkinson Removed To Home

Clarence Wilkinson, who suffered a broken back when struck by a falling tree at his ranch two weeks ago, was removed to his home on Wednesday in the Orelli ambulance. Mr. Wilkinson had been under treatment at Placerville Sanatorium since the accident. His condition was reported Wednesday as very much improved although he will, necessarily be confined to his bed for some time.

Beats Rare Disease

Laura Wolfrom, 6, shows how she beat an attack of beriberi, dread Oriental disease rare in the U. S.
Recovering in Pennsylvania hospital, she is surrounded with food containing the necessary vitamin which is sapped from body by the malady.

U. S. MOTHERS FORM LEGION

Mrs. Albert Simon Attends San Francisco Conference; Will Sponsor County Unit

Following her attendance at conferences in San Francisco last week Mrs. Albert Simon, of Placerville, is contacting leaders among women's groups of the county preparatory to launching an active movement to organize in El Dorado County a chapter of the National Legion of Mothers of America.

The establishment of the organization throughout the Bay District is being pushed under the auspices of the all-ready formed San Francisco Council of the order.
Kathleen Norris is pro tempore national chairman. A national membership of 5,000,000 is sought.

Purposes of the organization are three-fold: (1) To oppose the sending of American troops to fight on foreign soil; (2) To support an active program for adequate national defense; and (3) To oppose all subversive groups whose object is the destruction of the American form of government.

Membership is open to all women who are citizens and who subscribe to the above principles. The activities of the group will be to serve as a medium through which the women of the nation may voice their opinions on the objectives enunciated in the purposes of the organization; to urge women to register and vote; and to encourage women to study and debate important public questions.

The organization, which has San Francisco headquarters at 731 Hearst Building, does not collect dues but will receive and acknowledge contributions.

ERNEST HERZIG'S MARRIAGE ON SATURDAY IS ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Herzig, Sr., of Lotus, have received word of the marriage of their son, Ernest Herzig, and Miss Effie Graham, of Kelso, Washington, on Saturday.
The service was performed at Kelso and the couple will make their home at that place, Mr. Herzig being employed there.

Ernest is a graduate of our county high school who is remembered by his classmates for the active part he took in student affairs during his years in school.

We wish for him and his bride the realization of all their hopes for the future.

March 8th Date For H. S. Band Concert

March 8th has been chosen by the high school as the date for the second annual concert by the high school band, which will be given in the evening in the school auditorium.

The plan of giving an annual concert was instituted by the band last year and proceeds of the evening go to the fund for maintaining the band uniforms during the year.

The band members hope that their date has been selected sufficiently in advance to avoid a conflict with other events which may be planned in the community.

SUCCEEDS LATE CHAS. E. GREEN

Diamond Springs Garage Man Named To Office On Wednesday By Governor

Rolland R. Gust, Diamond Springs garage man, was named on Wednesday by Governor Culbert L.
Olson to be a member of the county Board of Supervisors from the Second District.

This is according to a United Press report to this newspaper on Wednesday morning.

He succeeds his late fellow townsman, Charles E. Green, who was elected Supervisor in November of 1936, and took office in January of 1937 for a four-year term. Mr.
Green died suddenly in mid-January of this year.

The appointment of Mr. Gust is to complete the unexpired term, which ends with the calendar year 1940.

Mr. Gust was born at Fresno and moved to Diamond Springs in 1927.
He is 37 years old, married and has two sons.

Following receipt of announcement of the Supervisor's appointment, George E. Faugstad, chairman of the county Democratic Central Committee, revealed that there had been a conference between members of the committee and Governor Olson and others interested at the Governor's office in Sacramento Tuesday.

The announcement of the appointment of Mr. Gust by the Governor was in keeping with the conclusions arrived at during the Tuesday conference.

Ellis Purlee Lion Speaker

Annual Valentine Party
Of Club Tuesday Night
At Shakespeare Clubhouse

Ellis Purlee, register of the United States Land Office at Sacramento, will be the guest speaker for Placerville Lions at their annual Valentine's ladies' night party Tuesday night at the Shakespeare Clubhouse.

Announcement of Mr. Purlee's acceptance of an invitation to be the speaker of the evening was made Wednesday by Thomas Maul, a member of the committee on arrangements, of which Walter Drys-dals is chairman.

Mr. Purlee has spoken before the club on previous occasions and is noted as being an especially entertaining speaker who usually conveys an inspiring and instructive message. Although he was actively connected with the presentation of the Shrine circus at Sacramento next week at the Memorial Auditorium, Mr. Purlee was able to arrive to permit him to accept the invitation to address the Lions.

An announcement called attention to the meeting of the Tri-county Women's Club Federation at Lincoln on February 27th and it was announced that at the February 20th meeting the program will feature motion pictures shown by R. E. Hefner, of the Standard Oil Company.

Mrs. Albert Simon gave a short talk about the National Legion of Mothers of America, for which she is county chairman, and will address the club more fully on this subject at the February 20th meeting.

County Clerk Arthur J. Koletzke received word early Wednesday of the sudden death at Sacramento of Tuesday of his cousin, Mrs. Lena Nichols Bolton, wife of George F.
Bolton, of Sacramento.

Mrs. Bolton was a sister of Bert and Clarence Nichols, of Sacramento, and of Mrs. W. E. Blair, of Fallon, Nevada. She was a cousin of Mr. Koletzke, Mrs. Alma Hobson and Billy Koletzke, and Mrs.
Louise Weymouth, of this city.

Mrs. Bolton was a native of Fol-son, aged 69 years. She was a member of the Native Daughters and the Rebekah lodges at Folsom, of the O. E. S. Chapter, at Marysville, and of the auxiliary to J. Holland Laidler Camp No. 9, U. S. W. V.
The funeral arrangements are pending.

Mr. Koletzke left early Wednesday for Sacramento.

CAPACITY RESERVATIONS FOR FATHERS' SONS' DINNER

220 Men And Boys Will Celebrate Opening Of 30th Anniversary Week Of Scouting At Shakespeare Clubhouse On Thursday Night

The twenty-third annual Fathers' and Sons' dinner is a sell-out.

The committee on reservations for the event, to be held Thursday night at six-thirty o'clock at the Shakespeare Clubhouse announced Wednesday morning that reservations total 220 and no further reservations will be accepted.

The committee of clubwomen who are to prepare the dinner is being asked to prepare for 220. Admission will be by ticket and it is hoped in this way to avoid a last minute rush of those who do not have reservations.

The dinner, sponsored by the district committee of Boy Scouts, is the opening function of Boy Scout week in the county, celebrating this year the thirtieth anniversary of the incorporation of the Boy Scouts of America.

The dinner will have as toastmaster District Chairman William T. Henderson, of Diamond Springs, and will present as a principal feature of the program a demonstration in Indian lore by Scoutmaster Perry Baker.

The program committee has arranged to have selections by the Placerville Grammar School orchestra, and numbers by the sixth grade boys' glee club as additional features of the program.

District Commissioner E. W. Zue-ger will speak briefly with reference to the thirtieth anniversary of Scouting and Area Field Executive William Howell, of Sacramento, will be called on for brief remarks.

SHAKESPEARE CLUB MEMBERS HOLD BUSINESS MEETING FOR FEBRUARY ON TUESDAY: "SCOTTY" ALLAN FOR ADDRESS CLUB FEBRUARY 13TH

The regular February business meeting of the Shakespeare club was held Tuesday afternoon at the clubhouse and the announcements and the club members were welcome to attend the meeting.

Mr. Allan will be accompanied by his old friend, Billy Metson, of Nome, Alaska.

Mrs. Eva Carpenter, the club publicity chairman, reports Mr. Met-son was the hero character of "The Spoilers," by Rex Beach.

"It was Billy Metson who in 1900 cleaned up on the McKenzie gang, claim jumpers of the North, and put law and order into that far off land. In Beach's book he is known as 'Billy Wheaton,' and the Mc-Kenzie gang as 'The McNamaras,'" says Mrs. Carpenter.

There will be an afternoon meeting at the Shakespeare Club at 2:30 and an evening meeting at 8 o'clock, at which time all members and their friends are invited. At 10 o'clock the following morning (Wednesday, Feb. 14th) they will appear at the Placerville grammar school, Mrs. Carpenter concluded.

Harry L. Jaspas Named Masonic Inspector

Harry L. Jaspas, immediate past master of El Dorado Lodge No. 26, F. & A. M., of Placerville, has been commissioned by the Worshipful Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of California Masons, William B.
Ogden, to be inspector for the twenty-fourth district, embracing lodges of El Dorado County.

Mr. Jaspas succeeds the late Charles E. Green, a member of Hiram Lodge No. 43, F. & A. M., who had held the office for several terms.

Allison Boy Buried on Wednesday Afternoon

The funeral services for Arnold Lane Allison, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Allison, who died on Monday, were held Wednesday afternoon from the Dillinger mortuary chapel. The Rev. Harold Morehouse officiated. Interment was at Camino cemetery.

Jack Ricks was in town on Wednesday from Plymouth and called at the forest headquarters on business in behalf of the Detert Estate.

FRANK E. SIMON SUMMONED; OBSEQUIES TO BE FRIDAY

A Cottage from "Moby Dick" Country

The great, great granddad of this cottage was probably a whaler's home on Nantucket Island off Cape Cod. There, hard by the cranberry bogs and within sight of the salt marshes that ring the island, its low, shingled roof and white side walls sheltered him from every kind of nautical weather.

Today, Randolph Evans, architect for the Monthly Small House Club, 227 East 45th Street, New York City, has adapted it for every part of the country, from Texas plains to Wisconsin lakesides. But in the sea-change, it has lost none of its original charm. It still retains its shake-covered sides, its casement windows and its slatted shutters. The only apparent exterior change has been the use of a colorful fire-resistant asphalt shingled roof for safety's and beauty's sake.

Inside, however, the twentieth century has left its mark everywhere. Electric outlets in every room replace the old oil lamps; a modern kitchen with an eight-foot drainboard and flat topped range subs for the old water-back stove; and a compact central heater, automatically fired, for the smoky oil heaters that once inadequately heated its Nantucket ancestor.

But like that fisherman's cottage, this, too, is built for the years. Long lived untrusting plumbing and staunch framing endow it with years of usefulness. Fireproof mineral wool insulation, 3 1/2 inches thick, fills every outside wall and covers its ceiling with fleecy protection against summer sun and winter cold, and, in properly frugal fashion, cuts fuel bills to the bone.

Of course, it's a very small house, but in these days of built-in conveniences, there's no longer a need for rambling old mansions. And another bedroom may be built at the back if more space is ever needed. It may be built in most parts of the country for less than $2,500—exclusive of land.

Taffeta for spring.

By VERA WINSTON

THE WHISPER of taffeta rustles through the spring sartorial symphony. Some of the nicest and most important dresses for late winter and early spring wear are of this attractive fabric. This one-piece model is mauve-colored with black dots. The bodice is seamed on past the waist, forming a hip yoke below a black suede belt. A tiny white silk collar has a binding of the print. The piece forming the shallow yoke continues down the outer sleeve. Skirt is circular with center seam front and back.

"YOUNG EYES"

By JAMES ASWELL

COPYRIGHT 1931, BY JAMES ASWELL * * * DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER I

YOU know my name, I suppose, if you ever read the Sunday supplements—Dick Carter, "that rich and dissolute old guy." You've read about the jewels I've given to lovely ladies and about the dozen different kinds of damage suits brought by the objects of my munificence. Maybe you remember my Roman Ranch in Florida, which the feature writers dubbed "Carter's Garden of Weeds" because I picked my guests more for pictorial effect and vitality than for any other reason and then turned them loose in comfortable surroundings to enjoy themselves.

But there is one episode in my career you don't know about. I'm not claiming any credit for it, particularly in view of the way it turned out; nevertheless it's part of the picture of Dick Carter, and the millions who ate up yards of columns concerning Dick Carter's high jinks ought to hear about the way he devoted a late Winter and early Spring to—I guess you'd call it—uplift work.

Actually, a lot of people will say I'm writing this just to get in the limelight again—maybe I have developed a taste for being in the news (sometimes fellows like me do)—but be that as it may, I can say one thing of this story that can't be said of many of the others about me I didn't write, and that is, it's true. Every word. I wouldn't want to lie or exaggerate because, in writing this, I can sort of keep fresh in my mind the picture of Sally Brale. I'm fifty-five years old (not sixty-one as some of the papers would have you believe), and there have been a good many girls on the horizon, one way or another. I don't want to blur the memory of Sally Brale, ever, so I am setting down the facts about her as simply and truthfully as I can. One more thing—you'll admit that though I mayn't be able to sling the idiom with the best of them, my writing at least shows I'm not the tough and tongue-tied heel some of the feature stories have painted me. I've read more than my ten-foot shelf in my day, and I didn't make all my money running beer into Philadelphia. I had it long before prohibition. I made it—but never mind.

I walked down the long flight of steps to the street door of the Simpatco Salon and let in Sally myself. That afternoon, I peeped at her through the slot in the door and was sure she'd made a mistake.

She was the loveliest and the freshest thing I'd ever seen, and I've seen plenty. I noticed that quality in her eyes that would stay always out of men's reach, whatever else of her they took. She gazed at me a little through the crack, but her eyes were still wider and bluer than any masquerade cutie's could be, even at the moment of ogling me for a string of rocks. Heck, I'm not getting the big features of those eyes at all. Wide and blue; sure. But there was something else. Innocence? Better than that, even when it's real, succinctly.

"She was the loveliest and the freshest thing I'd ever seen, and I've seen plenty."

Eagerness, maybe, or just youth. Maybe. Every time afterwards I got a load of those eyes, I caught myself looking down swiftly to see whether she was standing on her toes. Do you follow me at all?

"I want to see Mrs. Thomason," she told me, in a voice that was not high enough to round a baby-doll impression if there'd been one, and there wasn't. She talked straight at you, rather fast and excitedly. She was one of the few girls I've ever known who spoke to get over an idea instead of an effect.

I was positive she wasn't looking for the Simpatco then, because the name didn't stick. But I was willing to prolong the parley. I took the cigar out of my mouth and opened the door.

"Mrs. Thomason lives here, doesn't she?"

I smiled, groping for a parry. "What's the matter?" she wanted to know. "Didn't you hear what I said?" She wasn't cracking smart. She sounded really concerned over the possibility of my deafness.

"Mrs. Thomason," I repeated slowly, blinking one eye and looking up with the other. "The name sounds familiar. There are people in and out of here, Miss—"

"Sally Brale," she threw at me succinctly.

Then, out of nowhere, the answer popped into my head. "Mrs. Thomason" made a bone-fide connection with my memory. That was one of Cynthia's discarded names. I remembered some vague stuff she'd told me about marrying a man named Jake Thomason during the war. Something, too, about his being buried in Flanders Field where Poppies Blow, which I didn't take too seriously. Cynthia had had a slew of names.

"Oh, of course," I said, abandoning the facial contortions, "this is where you're headed for. You mean Cynthia St. George. She runs the place. Looking for a part-time job, girlie?"

She walked past me smiling a smile that was as white and fine—as white and fine and clean as the rollers on the Atlantic City beach. She said, "I don't know," and started up the steps.

This wasn't usual at all. I'd met some of the applicants for jobs at Cynthia's, because I hung around there all hours, and the run of them was divided into two types—the silly-shy, "You tag me!" variety, and the burnished babies who stared you through and knew all the answers before the questions were put.

I watched that little figure ascend half the flight before I made a move to follow her, and then not until she looked back. I remembered the curve of her spine and the way her head in a little blue hat, sat firmly on her shoulders. I had the feeling that I'd never seen any girl quite so young, and I was also sure that this kid hadn't ever taken a stab at the hostess racket before.

When I did get under way I went fast and at the top of the steps pushed a button connecting with a buzzer in Cynthia's private quarters on the floor above. There were two answering rings signifying, "Come up."

The kid stood in the little reception hall for a minute looking around. There was a triangular rug in a pattern of small triangles, a big square mirror and a red-and-black nook for hats and coats, which, of course, was empty at this hour. Smoking stands and crazy, low-backed chairs. A tall, silver urn that was meant, I think, for a waste-basket, but which Cynthia had mounted on a cubistic table and filled with cat-tails and golden rods.

She walked a few steps in and peeked toward the door which connected with the bar and, beyond that, the "Silver Salon." Then her eyes fell on that silver vase affair and she didn't move for a minute or so after I'd said, "Cynthia'll see you upstairs. Come on."

Since then it's occurred to me that right there was a moment that meant something to Sally's future. I don't think she was ever quite the same after she'd seen that tall, silver vase which Marshall, Cynthia's houseboy, kept shining all the time. I don't know why I keep thinking of that vase as important in Sally's story. I do. She liked it on sight, and she liked that flashy room.

"Gee," she said, in her ringing, excited way, "this is a gorgeous place, isn't it?"

"Yeah," I agreed, deciding a pretty speech might go well at this point, "and you're a cute little ornament for any room."

She grinned, without coyness, simply pleased. "Mrs. Thomason will see me now?"

I wondered what she'd say to the jungle color and modernistic daintiness of Cynthia's boudoir. I was surprised she approved a layout like the Simpatco Salon. She looked to me a girl of good family, a funny one to be getting into that game, even if there was a tall girl on Tuesday and Saturday evenings who claimed to be an English lady. Sally was the McCoy. I guess wholesome is the word.

TEMPORARY RELIEF BILL FOR $1,600,000 PASSES SENATE

SACRAMENTO. (UP)—The Senate today passed a temporary relief bill appropriating $1,600,000 which is said to be sufficient to carry the SRA load for eight days. The vote was unanimous, 35 to 0.

The bill now goes to the assembly which must concur in amendments to the bill which bar SRA staff members from engaging in political activity. Following this action, the bill goes to the Governor for his signature.

In the assembly today, Assemblyman Charles Lyon, Los Angeles, introduced a constitutional amendment to bar propositions from the ballot which have been once defeated.

Assemblyman Ray Williamson, of San Francisco, and others, were sponsors of a bill to legalize race bookmaking, limiting bookmakers to one for every ten thousand of population with the state getting 5 per cent of the handle. It was es-

BIRTHSTONES AMETHYST FOR FEBRUARY

USED EXTENSIVELY IN RINGS AND COSTUME JEWELRY

Burger Knows Gems . . .

AMETHYST the February Stone, is the purple variety of quartz—named from Greek word meaning "Without Drunkenness"—kept wearer from intoxication—was the stone of the purple tribe of Dan in the High Priests' breastplate—finest purple (often reddish) from Russia (Siberia)—light shade found nearly everywhere—good qualities today from Brazil and Uruguay—some from Ceylon and Madagascar—color often patchy and irregular, believed due to manganese, altered or destroyed by intense heat—always an ecclesiastical stone, worn by Roman Catholic Bishops and other prelates.
